Sed atrox Volscens nec Teli conspiciat usquam
Autorem. En. 9.

It is an old Observation, that those People who want Advice most, are always the least willing to accept it. And of this there never was a stronger Instance than the Manner in which that Advice was received, which was given two Months since in this Paper to a young Gentleman, under the Character of Cassius. The Craftsman of the 10th of Dec. contain'd a Letter wrote expressly in answer to it. But tho' the young Gentleman had given that Paper a Month's Consideration, yet so miserable is his Performance, that I should not have taken this Notice of it, if I did not imagine the Person who was weak enough to write such a Paper, might be vain enough likewise to fancy it unanswerable.

He tells his Readers at the Beginning, that he is not addicted to Panegyrick; and by the Specimen that follows, I sincerely credit him. But he is roused (it seems) by an honest Zeal to resent the blackest personal Calumny, by exposing the Heart and Intention of the wretched Author in brow beating all rising Virtue, mocking all publick Spirit, and slandering a certain young Gentleman in the grossest Manner. As to the Title of wretched Author, with which he is pleased to distinguish me; I wish his being as little affected with what I said in the Gazetteer, as I am with that Appellation, had shown it had as little Foundation. He is pleased likewise to think it ungenerous in me to advise him in that publick Manner, since I profess'd myself his Acquaintance; it is because I am his Acquaintance that I did not attempt it in private. But I am accused likewise of brow beating all rising Virtue, mocking all publick Spirit, and (to complete the Climax) of slandering a certain young Gentleman. This young Gentleman is, it seems, All rising Virtue, and All publick Spirit: For unless he insults upon what I have said of him, as a Proof of that Assertion, I defy him to give the least Evidence to support it. And for my Part, I cannot look upon Vanity as Virtue, or upon Resentment as publick Spirit.

But why did he take to himself the Character of Cassius? Does he think all other young Gentlemen below Notice? Or does he feel it alone belongs to him? If the latter is the Case, there would be some Hopes he might improve by it, and then I should rejoice at having given him the Advice. But he has set off this Prospect of my Success, for even in answer to a Paper, which did but intimate his fancying himself a Tully, he ventures (in the ingenious Manner following) to compare himself to Demosthenes.

To show how prejudicial to the Good of one's Country such Treatment of rising Merit may be; let us consider the great Demosthenes returning from the Bar, discontented at his own Performance meeting such an Adviser as this, persuading him already too much prejudiced against his own Imperfections, not to attempt to establish his Reputation as an Orator, for which he was no way designed by Nature: such Advice in the Situation he was in, might perhaps have had its fatal Effect. And what, O Athenians, would you have lost in this Case?

HAD my young Man been ever discontented at his own Performances, had he ever been prejudiced against his own Imperfections, he too would never have met with such an Adviser. But he has either mistaken, or else grossly misrepresented the Advice given. For I no where persuaded him not to attempt to establish his Reputation as an Orator, tho' I agree with him he is no way designed for it by Nature. I only advised him not fondly to imagine himself shining in his Meridian, just in the Day break of his Reputation. And suppose this Advice had had its desired Effect; what, O Athenians, would have been your Loss? You would have lost a ridiculous Flatterer in the present Age, and have gained perhaps an able Orator in the next.

BUT since he has begun the Comparison in one Instance, that of Modesty (of which his making the Comparison is itself the best Proof) he will not take it amiss if I ask a few Questions in regard to his Brother Orator. To begin then. Was Demosthenes better attended to the first time he attempted speaking, than when the Assembly was acquainted with his Abilities? Was Demosthenes guilty of premeditated Absence, to avoid taking Notice of such whom his Pride made him imagine were below him? Did Demosthenes behave superciliously to his Inferiors, to his Equals, to his Superiors? Did Demosthenes dictate in Politicks to Men grown old in Party, or in any Science those who had dedicated their whole Lives to it? Did Demosthenes write against the Law, the Physick, and the Religion of his Country, or ridicule the Form of that Government under which he lived? But I urge too far. I have a Regard for the young Gentleman, and it is for his Good alone I have said so much; I sincerely wish he would consider the Advice already given; or, if because unknown, he thinks me below his Notice, at least let him reflect on what was said to him by a R—t R—t—d.

I shall forbear saying any worse at present, because I would be always new if any future Occasion should require it.

IRELAND.

Dublin, Jan. 11. Thursday Morning his Grace the Lord Lieutenant went with a small Attendance to Luttrell's Town, to take the Diversion of Shooting.

The same Day arrived on board the Race-Horse from Chester, Major Shukburgh, of Lord Cathcart's Horse, and several other Persons of Distinction.

We hear that by the Act for the Relief of Insolvent Debtors, all who were Prisoners before the 4th of October last will be relieved; provided they do not owe to any one Person above 500 l.

Last Saturday Morning a dreadful Disaster happened at an Ale-house in Charles Street, where some Barrels of Gun-powder which were in a Cellar were, by Accident, set on Fire. The House was in an Instant blown up; 8 People were killed, and several wounded; 9 of the Wounded are now in the Charitable Infirmary. Mr. Dune the Chandler, who lived next Door, and went in to drink a Pint of Ale, was among those who were killed. But the Landlord, who was drawing the Ale in a Back Cellar, escaped tho' with some Wounds, as did Mr. Dune's Child, who follow'd his Father into the House.

There was a Hat full of Powder found under a Bed in the House which was blown up. Both Front and Rear of it were blown away, but the Roof was left untouched. 'Tis said the Powder was got by running Bucks at the Powder Mills.

R. Watson, W. M'Loughlin, W. Bird, P. Dugall, R. Holmes, and H. Jackson, Revenue Officers, having on the 15th of last Month met with some Smugglers, who had a Parcel of run Brandy on Carrs, near Swords, the Officers endeavoured to seize it, but being opposed by the Smugglers, a Fray ensued, in which Patt. McGuire, one of the Smugglers, was killed, and several wounded. Last Saturday the Officers surrendered themselves to the Lord Chief Justice, and were committed to Newgate.

We are informed, that for some time past a Knot or Gang of about 30 Villains and Robbers, have pestered the Counties of Antrim and Downe, and have robbed in the Night-time in a Body, by breaking open the Houses of Sir Robert Adair of Ballymenah, Col. Upton of Temple-Patrick, Mr. Studdart of Drummore, and Mrs. Johnston of Redemon, &c. and that 4 of the Party were taken some Days ago in a House on Peter's Hill at Belfast, and sent to Carrickfergus Gaol, where they now lie; and that several of the Goods that they robbed were found in their Custody when they were secured, and have been sworn to by the right Owners.

The Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, in order to lessen the Number of Vagabonds, has ordered all the News Boys to take out Badges.

COUNTRY NEWS.

Sunderland, Jan. 9. On Thursday last in the Evening died here, very much lamented, the Rev. Mr. Daniel Newcome, our first Rector, and principal Architect of the Building our Church: He was of such a publick Spirit, that he spent the greatest Part of his Revenue to beautify and adorn it, and has lately built a Dome adjoining to the East End, (which is not yet finished) into which he removed the Altar, and plac'd it under a Canopy of in-laid Work, supported in Front by two fluted Pillars of the Corinthian Order, with proper Capitals. He was upwards of 14 Years Chairman to the Hon. Board of Commissioners for making navigable the River Wear; which Trust he discharged with Honour and Applause. His Christian Charity and Benevolence was such, that he never was better pleased than when desir'd to do a good Action, especially if it was in his Power to perform it: Nor did he ever receive any other Advantage from the many good Offices he has done, than the Pleasure and Satisfaction of having done them; nor was there the least Partiality in the Distribution of his Favours. Never did the Heart and Affections of any Man go more with their Duty than his, whether in his Sermons or Prayers. His Christian and forgiving Temper scarce admits of a Parallel: It was a Maxim with him to accuse no Man; nor would he do another Man an Injury, because he would have done him one. A rare Example, and worthy the Imitation of all who profess Christ their Master!

This Day the Corpse of the above Gentleman was decently interred, the Pall-Bearers being the Rev. Mr. Nelson, the Rev. Mr. Swainston of Houghton, the Rev. Mr. Burn of Dalton, the Rev. Mr. Hilton of Monkwearmouth, the Rev. M. Chicken of Bishopwearmouth, and the Rev. Mr. Ireland, jun.

Bridgewater, Jan. 10. Last Night the Tide came up with great Force, overflowed our Key, and got into the Houses and Cellars adjoining. — And at Highbridge, 7 Miles from hence, it came with such Rapidity, that it broke down a great Part of the Sea Wall, whereby many hundred Acres of Land are overflowed in the Parishes near it, and a great Number of Sheep drowned. The Bridge is damaged very considerably.

Gloucester, Jan. 14. The Reverend Mr. Edward Pickering Rich, M. A. was last Week presented to the Rectory of Baginton and Donative of Baunton, the first in the Gift of the Right Hon. the Lord Viscount Weymouth, Baron Thynne of Warminster; the latter in the Gift of Thomas Master, Esq; and both in this County and Diocese.

We hear from Worcester, that in the great Storm of Wind and Rain which happen'd on Monday Night last, the Town-Hall was damaged to the Value of 600 l. the Churches also received great Damage, and several Chimnies were blown down.

From Upton upon Severn, that divers Chimnies also and several Trees were blown down there by the said Storm; and that they had a great deal of Thunder and Lightning at the same Time.

From Thornbury, that one Ph. Beasy, near the new Passage, had the Misfortune to lose his Wife and five Children, and two Maids, by the Sea Banks being broke down, and the Floods coming in: He was saved by breaking through the Thatch of the House, and sitting on the Ridge of it, in which Posture he continued till the next Morning, when a Boat came and fetch'd him away; he likewise lost all his Sheep and Cattle, as did most of his Neighbours. And

From Chepstow, that the Water rose at the Bridge upwards of 70 Foot, and very much damaged the same; that one Man lost above 130 Head of Cattle; and that the whole Damage there and at the adjacent Places, is computed at no less than 7 or 8000 l.

The City of Gloucester (blessed be God) sustain'd little Damage thereby. But,

We hear that our Neighbours at Arlingham, Awre, and several other Places along the River Severn, have received incredible Loss, their Sea Walls being broke down, and their Lands overflow'd, and vast Numbers of their Cattle and Sheep drown'd. Several Trows and Boats were sunk near Awre.

The Damage done at Bristol by the afore said Storm, and the Overflowing of the Tide, is computed at 100,000 l.

Norhampton, Jan. 16. We hear from Oakham in Rutland, that last Week a Man was committed to their Gaol for a Robbery on the Highway. It is remarkable, that not one Person has been hang'd there for near 18 Years past.

Ruptures cured by Mr. RAMSAY, Surgeon and Man-midwife, at his House in Cattle-yard, Holborn, London.

IT is apprehended that the Neglect of Advertising for upwards of Two Years, has occasion'd a Report that Mr. Ramsay was dead, or had declined that Branch of his Business. The great Number of Persons who labour under Misfortunes of that Nature, call for a Renewal of Publick Notice, That Mr. Ramsay continues effectually to cure all Disorders of that Kind; which was many Years ago well attested by very eminent Physicians and Surgeons; and the Curious or Afflicted may now be well satisfied by applying to the Publisher of the Craftsman, and many others, of the Certainty of Cures performed within later Times.

N. B. To prevent any one from losing the Opportunity of consulting with him who come a great Way, he is at Home Sundays, Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays, until 10 o'Clock.

By a Select Number of Fair Dealers in MINERAL WATERS.

A Seasonable Caution to all PYRMONT and SPAW Water-Drinkers.

THERE are frequently Imported Quantities of false Waters, sold by divers Druggists and others, which may be distinguish'd by their having no Marks on the Bottles, or Seals on the Flasks: Whereas no Bottles are suffer'd to be filled at the Pyrmont Spring, without having Impressed on the Bottles, either in Whole or in Part (as in the Margin) the Arms of the Prince of WALDECK, in whose Country the said Spring is situated.

SO likewise the true SPA WATERS have the adjoining Impression (being the Arms of the Prince of LINSZ, in whose Country the Spaw Fountains are situated) either impressed in Glais on the Neck of the Flask, or sealed with the same in Wax on the Cap of Leather, or both.

Such Pyrmont or Spa Waters as are not thus distinguish'd, are assuredly Spurious; and there are no small Quantities of such imported — which is the Reason of giving this Caution.
